

Digital Icebreaker

Industry after industry is being transformed by digitalisation. Often with completely changed business models as a result. Take the temperature of your organisation's digital maturity with our Digital Icebreaker.

---

Digitalisation is transforming industry after industry, often resulting in new business models and organisations. Hierarchies and silos are being dismantled and responsibility and authority are being decentralised. No-one remains unaffected by these changes, regardless of position in the organisation. As a leader it is important to understand how digitally mature the organisation is in order to get a good start to the change process.

How digitally mature is the organization?

Digital Icebreaker by H&H is a light and easy way to test the digital maturity of your organisation.

Start the change with laughter

For up to three hours the team will together map its digital maturity. This is done in an inspirational workshop where we create new insights through laughter, games and competitions. The team will do a number of tests and discuss the results together. This creates a common starting point for development both as a team and as an organisation.

Raise your digital perspectives!

The concept includes a start-up meeting with the sponsor of the workshop and a basic follow-up afterwards.

Everyone and everything is affected by digitalisation

Digital Icebreaker is suitable for all types of organisation and can be run with all types of groups as everyone and everything is affected by digitalisation.

The workshop is designed to be disarming – an icebreaker – and can be used to open up prior to a change or to support an ongoing change process.

Discover unexpected stars

Digital Icebreaker is designed so that the team can discover new insights without any individual running the risk of losing face as to their lack of digital maturity. It gives a chance for the unexpected stars to shine. The digital stars are not always the one's you would expect!
